New Dolley Madison Film Event

The National First Ladies' Library and the Western Reserve Public Media will co-host one of the national premieres of the new American Experience documentary Dolley Madison on Saturday, Feb. 27, at 1 p.m. Muffie Meyer, the filmmaker, and Ron Blumer, the writer, will attend the event to introduce the film and field questions afterward.

Style icon, extravagant hostess, humanitarian, doting mother, trusted political advisor and diplomat. These are the roles we now expect in a first lady, roles created by President James Madison's wife, Dolley. Dolley's beauty attracted attention, but it was her political acumen that set her apart in a time when women held no overt political power. As the "first first lady," she used her unelected position to legitimize the nation's new capital and to create a political and social style for the new country.

The event is free but reservations are required! For reservations call 330.452.0876 x.307 for Sheila Lolli (leave a clear message with your name & phone number, along with the number of reservations you would like. Sheila will return your call confirming your reservations). Reservations are on a first-come basis and seating is limited...so reserve early!

Fun Facts about Dolley!

Dolley Madison was the only first lady given an honorary permanent seat on the floor of Congress.

Dolley enjoyed snuff and used it publicly throughout her tenure as First Lady. She also liked an occasional pipe.

Dolley was the first American to respond to telegraph message-sent by inventor Samuel Morse.

She was reared as a Quaker and taught to dress very conservatively, although later she was known for her tight fitting low cut gowns.

Dolley Madison's cousin was Angelica Singleton Van Buren (Angelica's mother was a Coles as was Dolley's mother, so they were first cousins.)

Dolley's favorite drink was a whiskey punch.

Dolley was the first First Lady to open the doors of the White House once a week, midweek to entertain the influential...the next to do so; Michelle Obama.

She was sometimes called "Presidentress" for her role
